

STATE'S PLANNER
GIVES DEFINITION OF TERM "ZONING"

Francis J. Mulvihill Addresses the Borough Officials of Morrisville

TELLS OF ADVANTAGES

No Municipality in Bucks Co.
Has Created Zoning Commission

MORRISVILLE, Apr. 29.—"Zoning is a phase of wise planning that promotes and protects all the people, their health, safety, morals, prosperity, convenience and general welfare by common-sense and fair public-guided control of private real estate."

Such was the definition of zoning as given by Francis J. Mulvihill, chief planner of the Commonwealth, Department of Internal Affairs, at a meeting here last evening.

Lewis R. Bond, solicitor, on behalf of municipal officials: Thomas B. Stockham, burgess; William H. Howell, borough secretary; Harry H. Lair, George W. Burcher, A. T. Lynch, Richard H. Allen, C. C. Young, Martin W. Plack, John D. Bleaxdale and Frank Braker, councilmen, made a request to the Department of Internal Affairs which furnished the speaker.

What zoning is... does... when... where... why and how, Mr. Mulvihill explained and by means of pictures, projected on a curtain, illustrated the points for fuller understanding.

"In Bucks County no municipality has taken advantage of existing enabling law and created a zoning commission," according to records of the department," he said, "but that is not a complaint. We mention it as a possibility, knowing for some time various Bucks municipalities are showing interest in zoning."

Questions were encouraged by Mr. Mulvihill from the floor. "Hot-dog kennels, automobile grave-yards, billboards, filling stations and other ingredients of municipal spaghetti in wrong locations," were mentioned as some reasons why other places adopt zoning protection.

"You know there are sixty-seven counties in our state. In Bucks County your principal crops place you forward in the list, fifth in value; the value of your livestock, eleventh and the value of the products of your cows, hens, sheep and bees, fifth. By your attention and work your machine products exceed a half billion dollars."

"While you are building, busy creating and maintaining this structure of Bucks County it is necessary to point out you should be certain and check those things tending to undermine your foundations or destroy what you have with energy built up."

"A zoning ordinance provides districts for residence, business and industry, determined according to the use of land, occupancy and advisable heights and ground areas."

"Zoning is an enlarged form of good housekeeping."

"What applies in the home can be developed with as good effect outside the home, in the municipality."

"We suspect the principles of the zoning idea are familiar to you though you may not call it zoning. Your of (Continued on Page 3)

CANDIDATES STRIVE TO OBTAIN
BIG LEAD IN GOLD DISTRIBUTION
BEFORE FIRST PERIOD CLOSES

Interest Growing by Leaps and Bounds As Vote Decrease Draws Near

With the First Period of The Courier's $10,000 Free Gold Gift distribution but a few days distant, candidates are striving to pile up a lead, and at no time in the gold drive has interest been so great.

Even the most skeptical are admitting that the plan is decidedly different, and that candidates, whether they live in Bristol or elsewhere, have an equal chance of winning any one of the big bags of gold, the first one being $1,500.

A glance at the standing of candidates today shows an excellent opportunity for anyone to enter now and walk away with the prize of their choice. Study the campaign and see for yourself the great opportunity that is offered, the management urges.

EDGELY

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Michel, of Radcliffe street, had as their guests on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Greenhalge, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. E. P. Yoast, of Philadelphia, spent from Friday until Sunday as the guest of Mrs. Rebecca Hansen, of Edgely avenue.

Edward Crawford, of Newportville, was a Sunday guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dager, of Radcliffe street.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence High and family, of Radcliffe street, week-ended with relatives in Pottstown.

B. H. S. BOYS ANNEX
GAME WITH NEW HOPE

The Bristol High School boys annexed their fourth consecutive Lower Bucks County League baseball game yesterday afternoon when they succeeded in walloping the New Hope nine by the score of 11 to 4.

Hart twirled for the Cardinal and Gray throughout the entire game and did a fine job, allowing only eight hits. Ely tread the slab for the visitors.

Rockhill and Gaffney were the long distance clouters of the day, Rockhill getting two doubles and Gaffney being a close runner-up with a triple.

Bristol, as usual, forced into the lead in the first inning when Rockhill and Leighton crossed the plate for the local nine's first two runs of the game and never once was the Cardinal and Gray in danger of losing it.

A double play by the New Hope nine in the fourth inning was the feature of the game.

Friday the local boys play Morrisville at home.

IS BURIED HERE

Burial was made here this afternoon of Mrs. Jessie May Thompson, who died at her Ardmore home on Sunday. The deceased was a former resident of Bristol. Interment at Bristol Cemetery was in charge of H. S. Rue Estate, undertakers.

FIRST DECREASE NEAR

May 11th will mark the end of the all-important First Period and at that time it should not be a difficult matter to know who is who in the big gold drive. Votes will take their first decrease at that time, and candidates—new and old—alike, are urged to bend every minute in getting in all promises before ten o'clock that night.

Many are heard to remark that the field has been thoroughly worked and that few subscriptions remain to be had. A little thinking will prove that this is not true. If it were possible to cover such a large territory in less than a month why would The Courier have a ten-week campaign? Why go to the extra expense of keeping a campaign crew the extra weeks—paying rent—using advertising space, and so on.

ADVISES WOMEN TO BETTER KNOW
MEN OF AFFAIRS

Miss Gertrude Ely Gives Instructive Discourse to Women

VOTERS' LEAGUE MEETS

Miss Gertrude Bright Tells of Her Work in The County

(By Staff Correspondent)

NEWTOWN, Apr. 29.—"The League of Women Voters stands for self-expression and not 'machine minds.'"

Thus did Miss Gertrude Ely, of Bryn Mawr, chairman of the Pennsylvania State League, sum up the attitude and aims of that large organization of women at the spring meeting of the Bucks County League of Women Voters in the Friends Meeting House, here yesterday afternoon.

Urging the women assembled from all sections of Bucks County, to learn about political activities in the county, state, and nation, and to understand fully all phases of the many situations arising, Miss Ely advised that each should "know better the men who are doing things for us."

Miss Ely, a most active league worker, and one who has studied all phases of politics, was heartily received by the group assembled here. "With a league like yours, we as a state can carry on," she told the Bucks County members. "Bucks County has learned to do the well organized thing, and sends its quota regularly," she remarked in commending the county on the splendid manner in which affairs of the league are carried out.

"We are trying to give women an opportunity to keep on thinking and keep on learning even after their formal education has ceased. We should all learn just what is going on, and realize more fully our rights and privileges." The state chairman told that only four per cent of the people of the United States go in for continued education after they have grown, and then explained how and why women of the commonwealth and nation at large should know the "ins" and "outs" of government. The Bucks Countians were told that the majority of countries are far in advance of the United States in this respect.

"How easy it is for us to take things for granted!" said Miss Ely. She then referred to the "non-partisan" and "all-partisan" principles of the league, and of the League's value to womanhood; and continued with reference to the league's instrumentality in passage of certain legislative matters in the state. "An indifferent attitude regarding elections is disrupting to a democracy," was another pertinent remark.

TEN DEAD AS OIL WELL
IGNITES IN TEXAS

Two Believed Dying; 21 Are Reported Missing
Today

BODIES ARE RECOVERED

GLADEWATER, Tex., Apr. 29.—Ten persons were known to be dead and two more were believed to be dying and 21 reported missing today as scores of fire fighters continued to battle and to quell a flaming oil well which took the heavy toll of life last night.

The bodies of the known dead have been recovered but the full loss of life may never be determined. Several spectators are believed to have been caught in the blaze. Reports had it that from 4 to 8 persons had been accounted for but the mass confusion which followed the fire made it impossible today to make an accurate check. Six persons were seriously burned and two of them are expected to die.

The fatal fire started early last night as a double crew of workmen were fighting to shut down the St. Clair No. 1 M. P. Oil Well which blew in wild, 24 miles southwest of here.

BENEFIT CARD PARTY

Mrs. H. Shipp of 605 Radcliffe street will hold a card party Friday evening at her home for the benefit of the Harriman Hospital. The public is invited to attend this party and a pleasant evening is expected. The games played and many beautiful prizes, such as radio lamp, patch-work quilt, silk stockings, silk underwear, card table, sherbet glasses, electric hot plate, card table, compact, and other useful things will be awarded. The table assignments will be made at 3.45 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cray, of Wismoming, Pa., were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McDonald, of Bath street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yardley, of York, Pa., spent Sunday with Mrs. Yardley's sister, Miss Jennie Slater, of Lafayette street.

TOWN BRIEFS

Edward Ray, of Wilmington, Del., passed the week-end at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Malcolm, of New Buckley street.

Miss Mildred Hodges, of Philadelphia, spent Saturday and Sunday as the guest of Miss Beulah Stackhouse, of Swain street.

Miss Eva Hibbs, who has been spending the past six weeks with Mrs. Florence Hibbs, of Walnut street, has returned to her home in Chester.

The ladies who gathered at the Community House on Tuesday afternoon to sew for the Needlework Guild, are as follows: Mrs. Mary Ancker, Mrs. G. Williams, Mrs. William Lefferts, Mrs. L. Guthrie, Mrs. Ida Thorne, Mrs. Harry Daniels, Mrs. George King, Mrs. Howard Thornton, Mrs. Laura Taylor.

CORONER'S JURY PROBES
CAUSE OF THREE DEATHS

Inquisitions Are Held and Verdicts Given by The Jury

CORONER PRESIDES

Three inquests were conducted here yesterday afternoon by Coroner of Bucks County, Dr. John J. Sweeney. In one the verdict was accidental death and in the other two those held were exonerated of all blame and released.

The first inquisition was into the death of Frank Nine, 48, 20 Fitzrandolph avenue, Trenton, N. J., who, according to the coroner jury's verdict "death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage which caused Nine to fall into a trench 11 feet deep," at Green Lane, Bristol, on the morning of April 3rd.

Nine was employed by the F. H. Curtis Construction Company which is building an underpass at the Green Lane crossing of the P. R. R.

Nine while engaged at his work of hooking a chain from a crane onto a piece of steel sheathing suddenly dropped into the trench. He was rushed to the Harriman Hospital, where every effort was employed for 15 minutes to revive him without success. It was at first thought he had been electrocuted but a postmortem held by Dr. Sweeney, Dr. George T. Fox and Dr. Martin W. Reddin, Trenton, led the physicians to render a verdict that death was due to apoplexy.

Dr. George T. Fox was the first witness. He gave the history of the case after the patient was admitted. He told of the absence of burns or of any marks which would indicate that there had been contact with electricity. He told of the postmortem conducted and of the findings of the three physicians.

Other witnesses were Frank Jeffries, 704 Princeton avenue, Trenton, N. J.; Allen Lebo, 328 Hayes street, Bristol; David Miseralli, 119 Harrison street, Morrisville; G. S. Ballie, 120 West Franklin street, Morrisville.

Coroner Sweeney explained to the jury that in his opinion they could eliminate electrocution as a possible cause of death. He also said that apoplexy could be excluded as the post-mortem revealed the brain in such condition that apparently apoplexy had not been the cause of death. The jury retired and returned after a few minutes of deliberations with the verdict as above stated.

The second inquest was into the death of Earl Waters, colored, 129 North Conestoga street, West Philadelphia. Waters was killed on the Lincoln Highway January 31st, at Oxford Valley.

The first witness was Highway Patrolman John Pezzant, formerly of S. Langhorne.

The Patrolman stated that he investigated the case and found a car occupied by Waters and William Mayo, 162 North Sulward street, Philadelphia, while traveling west on the Lincoln Highway, sideswiped a truck going eastward, said truck being driven by William Curry, Chester County, Delaware. The three men left their vehicles and were discussing the accident when a truck driven by Genard Tarsantucci, of Avondale, Chester County, Pa., approached.

The two colored men, Waters and Mayo, while under the influence of liquor, according to witnesses, stepped out in front of the truck. Waters was killed and Mayo was injured.

The coroner's jury exonerated Tarsantucci of all blame.

In addition to Patrolman Pezzant the other witnesses were William Curry and Tarsantucci.

The third and final inquest was into the death of John M. Hancy, 739 Pine street, Bristol, who stepped from a curb near the factory of Keystone Aircraft Corporation on the evening of January 22nd, and struck the handle on a door of a car with his head. The car was driven by Joseph Pilia, 223 Lippincott street, Riverside, N. J.

Hancy died the following afternoon in the hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner.

PARADE ROUTES FOR BOTH BRISTOL AND BURLINGTON
DELEGATIONS ARE OUTLINED FOR SATURDAY, THE DAY
NAMED FOR DEDICATION OF THE NEW BRIDGE HERE

MARSHAL'S ORDERS

For the Vehicular Parade to Be Held in Connection With the Dedication of the New Burlington-Bristol Bridge Saturday, May 2, 1931

Industrial and Mercantile Division

The automobile dealers section of this division will form on the south side of Jefferson avenue, with the head of the line resting on Radcliffe street. The whole of Jefferson avenue from Radcliffe street to the railroad, will be reserved for this section. The dealers may decide among themselves, as to the positions they are to occupy in the section. Should no arrangements be made, then the first cars to arrive will take the head of the line and the others fall in behind as they reach the place of formation. The American Legion Bugle Corps will march to the corner of Radcliffe street and Jefferson avenue, where a truck will be waiting for them.

The whole of Wood street from Jefferson avenue to Mill street, will be reserved for the industrial and mercantile exhibits. Wood street between Jefferson avenue and Washington street, will be reserved for the industrial display and below Washington street for the mercantile exhibits. It is suggested that the manufacturers take their positions in the line of the parade, according to the years they have been in business in Bristol, which would give them positions as follows:

- D. Landreth Seed Co.
- Peirce & Williams
- T. B. Harkins Foundry Co.
- Wm. H. Grundy Co., Inc.
- Thos. L. Leedom Co.
- Lucius Beebe & Sons, Inc.
- Edward T. Steel & Co.
- Bristol Patent Leather Co.
- Rohm & Haas
- Keystone Aircraft Corporation
- Krench-Wolf Paint Products Works
- Superior Zinc Corporation
- Manhattan Soap Co.
- Pacific Steel Boiler Co.
- and other industries

The mercantile exhibits will fall in behind each other as they reach the place of formation. The Cadets Bugle Corps will march to the corner of Jefferson avenue and Wood street, where a truck will be in waiting for them.

Cedar Street will be reserved for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who will hold their annual convention at Croydon, on Saturday and in the afternoon will participate in the parade. The head of their line should rest on Jefferson avenue.

Movement of the Parade

The parade will form at 1.30 o'clock and start promptly at 2 o'clock, so that the line may be in its position at the bridge, before the exercises begin. This arrangement will give the drivers of the cars an opportunity to witness the dedication exercises.

The line will move from its place of formation on Jefferson avenue, down Radcliffe street to Mill and thence by way of the highway to the place of formation at the bridge. This division will be in charge of Carl Wenzel. When the end of the automobile section passes Wood street, the industrial and mercantile sections will follow, and when the end of this section reaches Cedar street, the Veterans of Foreign Wars will fall in.

Formation of First Division

While the industrial and mercantile section is being formed in Bristol, John Hardy, who will have charge of the First Division, will receive the young ladies who will represent the towns on the Pennsylvania side of the river, at the Maple Beach Club House. The space in front of the club house will be reserved for their cars.

Formation of Third Division

All persons who desire to participate in the third or private car division of the parade, will park their cars on the east side of the bridge, either on the road paralleling the river, or on the cross roads with their cars facing toward the river. When this division is ready to move, it will proceed on the road along the river, passing under the bridge, around the corner and approach the incline leading to the bridge, from the west side in front of the club house. Wesley Spencer will be in charge of this division. Persons from Bristol who will attend the ceremonies, are requested to use the road to Maple Beach, which joins the highway, just south of Mill street, as it will greatly expedite the parking of the cars.

The Burlington Parade

The Burlington parade will cross the bridge to the Pennsylvania side, where it will be met by the Bristol Parade Committee and the Bristol Police, and escorted over the new concrete road leading from the bridge to the Bristol Highway, up the highway to Mill street, to Radcliffe street, up Radcliffe street to "The Pines" where the parade will turn onto the main highway, and proceed back through the town to Fond and Mulberry streets. Those desiring (Continued on Page 3)

SPEEDIER DIVORCE LAWS
LEGALIZED IN NEVADA

New Law Just Passed Becomes Effective On May 1st

SIX WEEKS' RESIDENCE

RENO, Nevada, Apr. 29.—(INS)—Speedier, quieter and easier divorce laws were legalized in Nevada this week. The new law passed by the Nevada Legislature governing divorce becomes effective Friday, May 1, 1931.

As previously, Reno expects to hold its national capital of the "nation's divorce capital."

A survey of divorces said they expected to make about 350 prospective divorces to take advantage of the new law. Their actions are expected to be filed Saturday between the hours of 9 and 12 and calendared for hearing the following week. At least two other state legislatures revised their divorce laws recently enabling those who are unhappily married to sever their matrimonial bonds after a three months' residence. Nevada made the residence period six weeks instead of three months.

TROOP 2 MEETS

Troop 2, Boy Scouts, held its weekly meeting Monday evening, with 70% of the troop membership in attendance. Deputy Commissioner David Neill was in attendance. A stunt was staged by each patrol, and tests were passed. Scoutmaster Healey described games for next year's district meet. Candle ceremony was held and two new scouts, Albert Blanch and John Fitzgerald, admitted. Lawrence McCoy gave the benediction. Some members passed first-aid tests.

GREENSBURG, April 29.—(INS)—

For the first time since last summer, fire plugs here are being flushed to free them of sediment gathered in water lines. Flushing, ordinarily done twice a year, was postponed last fall because of the drought.

SIX PATROLMEN WILL ASSIST IN DIRECTING TRAFFIC

Cars for Marshal, Aides and Bristol Sponsor Will Be Decorated

WILL MEET AT 1.30 P. M.

Separate Division Allotted To Drivers of Private Cars

Plans for the Bristol division of the parade which is to be held Saturday in connection with the dedication of the Burlington-Bristol bridge have about been completed. The final meeting of the parade committee was held last night at which time details were gone into and arranged.

The parade will meet promptly at 1.30 and all merchants, industries, and private car owners are urged to participate. The private car owners are to be allotted a separate division.

A place has also been given for the Veterans of Foreign Wars who are to meet in convention at Croydon on Saturday.

Miss Betty Hill who is to be the sponsor for Bristol is to ride in an open car which will be decorated in the colors of Bristol—blue and gold.

The cars for the marshal and his aides will be decorated to correspond. Six highway patrolmen have been assigned by the State Highway Department to assist in the direction of traffic.

Complete instructions for the Bristol division of the parade will be found elsewhere in this issue under the "Marshal's Orders."

The officers of the celebration committee, after conference with the Burlington Mayor, Burlington and State Police, have announced the following routes for the parade in Burlington, which will be a feature in the opening day celebration.

The Bristol parade, starting as soon after the completion of the dedication ceremonies as the bridge can be cleared of people, will cross the bridge, proceeding along new bridge approach to Washington avenue; then up Washington avenue to Broad street, east on Broad to High street; north on High to Union street; east on Union to Tatham street; south on High street to the State Highway, then west on the Highway to the bridge approach and thence back to Pennsylvania.

The Burlington parade will form in sections on the following streets:

1. Sponsors, officials and civic floats will form on the Green Bank.
  2. Commercial and industrial floats and trucks will form their division on Pearl street, between High and Ellis streets.
  3. Any passenger cars desiring to enter the parade will form this section on Union street, between High and Ellis streets.
- From these positions the various sections of the Burlington parade will fall into line in the order named above and proceed over the bridge to Pennsylvania where they will be met by representatives of Bristol and conducted on a tour of that vicinity.

MEETING HELD

The Daughters of America, Council No. 58, held a business meeting of members on Friday evening in the F. P. A. Hall, Radcliffe street. Three new members were taken into the lodge. Following the business and initiation, a delicious repast consisting of cold ham, potato salad, deviled eggs, pepper hash, pickles, olives, cheese, pineapple and banana, cake, coffee and tea, was served.

ANDALUSIA

We don't know that the so-called 18-day diet, attributed to the citrus fruit industry, is any more dangerous than the others that have had a vogue since slenderness became a national fetish. It probably is no less. And at least we can wonder at its great popularity at a time when doctors on all sides are sounding warnings against the dangers of any standardized system of losing weight.

There are plenty of examples of the working of these hazards. A girl who 10 years ago was called the most beautiful on the New York stage is today in an Eastern sanitarium, an old woman at 32 through drastic dieting. The list of women in the films who have wrecked health and happiness in an attempt to defeat a natural tendency to curves is long. These are public instances of the distress which has come to thousands of persons, mostly girls, who have incurred one or another of the ailments that grow from undernourishment or malnutrition.

Each of us needs a different combination of foods to preserve the chemical balance of his body, and what the combination is is something that is better decided by a competent physician than by a concern with food to sell. Pineapples and lamb chops, one of the first of the reducing panaceas, were probably very beneficial to the pineapple industry, but not so much so to the many persons whose stomachs were wrecked by its adoption without medical advice. Not the least of the ill effects of indiscriminate abstinence from food is an inability afterward to regain a normal and healthy appetite. Most of the instances of disease that grow from dieting come from this inability to eat, once the dieter has become accustomed to a state of semi-starvation.

"Tell me what you eat," said Brillat-Savarin, "and I'll tell you what you are." This wouldn't be hard in the case of the indiscriminate dieter. The famous epicure would doubtless join the doctors in describing him as considerable of a fool.

AIRCRAFT IN WAR

An entire battery of 75-millimeter howitzer field pieces, four guns and their crews, transported 120 miles across the jungles of Panama and set up ready for action in a total elapsed time of 67 minutes. A vision of military dreamers? No, a military maneuver of today.

Such a feat would have been impossible a few years ago. Aviation made it possible. On land over some sort of a road it would have taken hours; through unbroken jungle, days.

Seven air transports of the United States army under a convoy of 14 fast pursuit planes accomplished it during the maneuvers at the canal to demonstrate the value of synchronized air and land forces.

Performances such as this are answering that question as to the place of aircraft in modern warfare and the warfare of the future. They are deciding that controversy which has divided military opinion and which a few years ago presented a major issue of military policy.

Dave Ordway, wealthy, young victor, lands his disabled plane in the Florida orange grove owned by Joan Marbury. Joan and her cousin, Sally, alone on the plantation, have great difficulty in running the place, due to the interference of Mueller, their disreputable neighbor. When Dave rescues Mueller's demand of $5,000 for the damage to his property, etc., through the trees to his landing on the Marbury plantation, Mueller holds him up and releases him of $850, threatening to conduct more. That night Mueller sets fire to Dave's plane. Rushing to the scene, Dave encounters Mueller. A quarrel ensues. Joan rescues Dave. Under Sally's care Dave recovers from the effects of his tight. Though attracted to Sally, he admires the reserved Joan's courage. Sally, anxious to return north for a good time, urges Joan to accept Dave's offer to purchase the plantation. Joan tells of the "accidents" to the property following her repulsion of Mueller's advances. Dave receives an unexpected visit from his former fiancée, Barbara Holworthy, and his friends, Gerry Flemming and Talbot Henderson. At dinner Dave uses the antagonism between Barbara and Joan. The boys plan to even the score with Mueller.

CHAPTER XII.

"GET it over with tonight, then," said Barbara, poetically. "There's a perfectly adorable crowd aboard the Restless waiting for Gerry to ferry them to Havana."

"They can wait," drawled Gerry. "Plenty of food, liquor and jazz records on board."

"But think how they'll miss your torch songs on the mouth organ, dearest," cooed Barbara.

Gerry's eyes brightened for an instant, then his face became set in stubborn lines.

"They can wait," he said merrily. "Lousy bunch this cruise, anyway. That Italian count, Di Angelo, looks, talks and smells like a gigolo. Forget I'll host some day and smack him."

An Eye For An Eye

"Miss Marbury," interrupted Talbot, "have you an extra guest room in the house?"

Warned by the malicious gleam in his eye, Joan hesitated.

"Why do you ask?" she countered.

"I'd like to install myself as a paying guest," he proposed brightly. "If you haven't a room for me, I'll sleep in the yard. But it's only fair to warn you that I have hay fever and will probably keep you awake by sneezing all night. And if I so much as dream that I've seen a snake, I'll scream and scream. You see," he explained confidentially, "Dave and Gerry and I haven't enjoyed a real good fight since last Summer, when we licked a half a dozen bull-fighters in the casino at Santander, on the Spanish Coast. That is, Dave and Gerry, who isn't quite as dumb as he looks, licked them, while I stood in the doorway handing out baskets of francs, pesetas and dollars to the Spanish cops who answered the riot call."

He turned to Dave, whose gray eyes were sparkling at the memories his stout friend's words had conjured up.

"Listen, Dave," he continued, "didn't you say that Mueller has an airplane?"

"At least one," nodded the flyer.

"The girls think he has several."

"Well," said Talbot, "Gerry always counts on me to furnish the bright ideas for the party. It saves him the fatiguing task of celebrating. So here's my one good thought for the day. If Mueller did you in the eye by burning your plane, it's only fair that he should replace it."

"Your logic is excellent," laughed Joan, "but you are not good at psychology. Mueller isn't given to impulsive generosity."

"Let's go take one away from him," said Gerry, brilliantly.

Talbot clapped his hands.

"Bravo, Gerry!" he exclaimed delightedly. "You've been thinking again! You see, Miss Sally," he said, looking into the dancing black eyes of his vis-a-vis, "you haven't any idea what a good combination we make for offense and defense. It's why we've been so successful all these years. Not one of us has lost an arm or a leg or spent more than one night at a time in jail. I, being the naturally bright one, do the thinking. Gerry always casts the deciding vote by saying 'Let's smack 'em.' Dave, being direct and purposeful and strong, does the fighting. It's all very simple. Some day I'm going to write a book entitled 'Fighting in Every Language.' It will be enormously successful."

Bored To Distraction

Once again Barbara stifled a yawn not too carefully.

"If you boys are going to cook up a lot of deviltry," she said petulantly, "I wish you'd give me the keys to the Hispano and let me drive back to the yacht."

"What?" exclaimed Talbot, "and leave Davey exposed to all these dangers?"

He was about to become more explicit when he started suddenly and removed a bruised shin from its proximity to Dave's shoe.

"Tell you what we'll do," said Dave, scowling at Talbot. "We'll stroll over to Mueller's place and see how the land lays. If he comes buzzing around with his plug-uglies, we might even pass a little time away by taking a poke at them. Then we'll totter over to the hangar and pick ourselves out a pretty plane. I've had it in mind for some time to try an amphibian. Then I'll fly it to St. Pete and you can follow along in the—"

He broke off suddenly, a crease of thoughtfulness between his eyebrows. "No, that won't do," he said. "Mueller'll take out his hate on Joan and Sally."

"It doesn't matter," said Joan, quickly. "He's done about all the damage he can already."

"Why haven't you called in the police and had him arrested?" asked Barbara, coldly.

"There's nothing we can prove against him," replied Joan, patiently. "We can't prove that he girdled an acre of new grapefruit saplings, or that he broke our Ford. And we can hardly complain to the police about the way he looks at us."

"Oh, I see," said Barbara, in a tone which indicated that she did not see at all.

"Bring the girls back to the Restless," suggested Gerry. "I'll send for their trunks tomorrow. Take nice long cruise. Perfectly respectable chaperones aboard. The Willoughbys, Southampton. Know them?"

Joan laughed and shook her head.

"No," she said, "you're all staying here tonight. If you left right now, you wouldn't get back to St. Petersburg before morning and you'd all be wrecks. We have plenty of extra rooms if you don't mind the shabbiness of everything."

"At least one," nodded the flyer. "Perhaps Dave hasn't told you that Sally and I are very poor and haven't been able to keep things up as we would have liked. But you'll find the beds quite comfortable, I think, and we'll be delighted to have you stay here."

"That's marvellous!" exclaimed Talbot who, having always had more money than he could possibly spend, was unable to comprehend that even one more large meal for such a crowd might work a hardship upon his hostesses. "If we take the hangar locked, we'll have another go at it in the morning."

"Davey, dear," pouted Barbara, placing a slender hand upon the flyer's sleeve, "will you promise that you'll take care of yourself and come back to the yacht with us the very first thing in the morning?"

Dave was conscious that he blushed at her quite apparent air of possessiveness and he hated himself for it. He dared not look at the others. It contributed little to his peace of mind to know that the diabolic Talbot was grinning maliciously at him.

"Let's go," said Gerry, restlessly. "Crave action."

Dave glanced doubtfully at Joan and Sally, hesitating to embark upon a course which would inevitably draw these two girls deeper into the whirlpool of trouble in which they had floundered since Mueller's arrival. Then, suddenly, he stiffened in his chair, his trained ears attuned to a faint purring outside the house.

"I hear either a high-powered car or an airplane," he announced.

The others listened, too, for such was the intangible impression of isolation about the big house that any sound from outside seemed alien and intrusive.

"A car," muttered Dave. "Did you idiots tell anyone else to come out here after you?"

"Glad to get away from 'em," replied Gerry. "Didn't tell 'em we were going ashore."

The sound of the motor grew louder and louder, then became silent. Joan rose as she heard footsteps on the gravel path. The others presently heard her voice, chill and polite.

A Premature Meeting

"Good evening, Mr. Mueller," "Evening, Joan," Dave started violently when he heard that voice. "Ain't you going to invite us in?"

Dave's face became very bleak. He reached for one of the heavy silver candlesticks in the center of the table, blew out the flame and deliberately placed it on the floor beside him, close to his right hand.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Mueller," came Joan's icily polite voice. "We have guests."

"Yeah. It's them I come to see this time," retorted the other.

Those in the dining room heard the shuffle of feet. Dave's body grew rigid as his right hand dropped toward the candlestick.

"Still, Dave," urged Talbot. "Let's see what he wants. If he gets fresh we'll give him the bum's rush."

Dave's half-closed eyes were watching the arched doorway. Sally's face was pale, her muscles tense. Gerry and Talbot were relaxed in their chairs, smiling in pleased anticipation. Barbara looked bored.

Joan reappeared in the room, followed by the hard-eyed, swarthy-faced Mueller and the thick-necked Italian who had held Dave while his employer had kicked him into unconsciousness. Mueller was gorgeously arrayed in a golf suit of loud checks, a pale blue shirt and a French blue scarf which exactly matched the light sweater and the ribbed and tasseled golf socks.

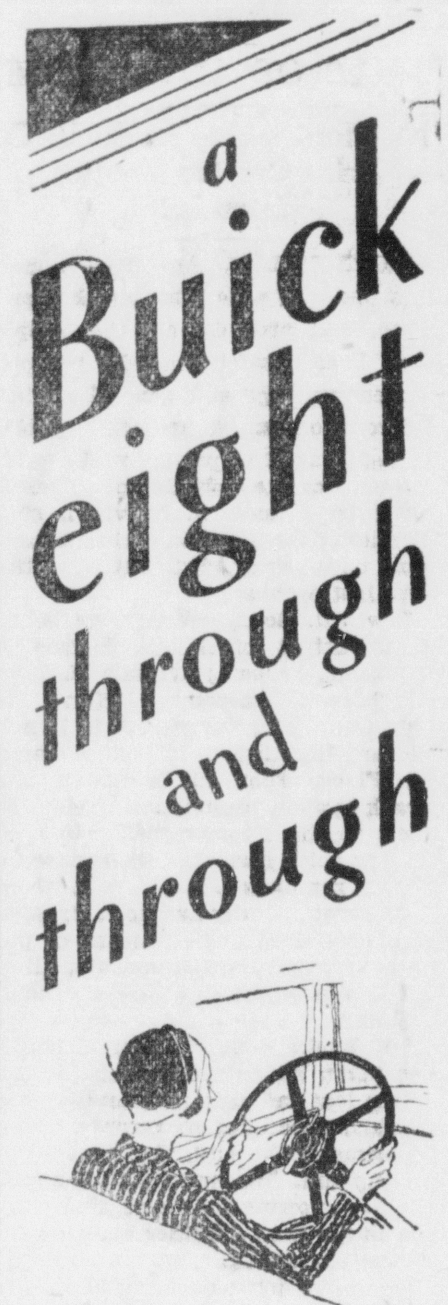

"My eye!" murmured Talbot in an awed whisper. "I must drop a line to the blighter who writes the men's fashion notes in the theatre programs!"

to do so may leave the line of parade at this point, thus giving to Burlington people an opportunity to follow their own inclinations. Some may wish to be shown through the new Municipal Building, others may feel inclined to visit relatives or friends, still others may be interested in our stores on Mill street, and many who enjoy fraternal relationships will want to visit the club houses in the town. The bridge will be absolutely free until 12 o'clock on Saturday evening.

An Appeal to Civic Pride

As the opening of this bridge is the consummation of a dream which has possessed our minds for many years, we should all look upon its completion and dedication as one of the most important events in the town's history, and unite in the making this dedication celebration, worthy of the occasion. Our manufacturers, merchants and private citizens, should look upon it as an expression of civic pride and community spirit, to take part in the demonstration. The Bristol parade is to cross the bridge and parade in Burlington, just as the Burlington parade is to cross over and parade in Bristol. The progressive spirit of the citizens on both sides of the river, their desire for friendly relations, socially, commercially and fraternally, and the spirit of civic pride and community spirit, which actuates their motives, will all be judged by the character of the displays made in the parades. May I, therefore, appeal to the civic pride of our manufacturers, our merchants and our automobile dealers, to make suitable displays in the parade; and may I also appeal to our private citizens, to turn out in the parade, and make the third division, by its great length, an expression of our kindly feelings toward our Burlington neighbors, to whom this bridge will soon bind us by friendly and cordial ties, as well as open up opportunities for commercial relationships, the importance or volume of which cannot be measured at this time.

Langhorne Women's Golf Team Wins A Fine Match

LANGHORNE, April 29.—The first of its interclub golf matches was won by the women's golf team of the Bucks County Country Club, playing the North Hills team, yesterday. The latter lost 7 to 1, with the local players losing only one match.

Mrs. A. H. Greywacz, captain of the Bucks County outfit, fell before the superlative golf of Mrs. C. C. Bond, of the North Hills team, but the remainder of the Langhorne divot-diggers rose gloriously to the occasion, registering victory after victory.

Miss Helen O'Connor quickly squared matters after her captain's defeat by setting down Mrs. William Brown. Mrs. Edward Griffin continued the good work by defeating Mrs. A. W. Miller. Mrs. A. S. Hager conquered Miss Freda Narriotti, Mrs. Hedley White overcame Mrs. J. C. Diamond, Miss Helen Hines defeated Mrs. G. G. Richards and Mrs. J. B. Cundy, III, sank Mrs. Harry Flanigan.

The victorious team will entertain the Bala outfit here Friday. On Saturday the qualifying round of the Spring Handicap Tournament for women will be held. Prizes will be given to the low scorers in the qualifying play.

Assembly Prepares For Session of Hard Work

Real test of the Blue Law question will now come next week when the amended Schwartz bill comes up for final passing.

The passing of three administration bills for abolition of the Public Service Commission and its supplanting by a fare board, came last night.

PITTSBURGH, Apr. 29.—(INS).—Not every German police dog (and they all really aren't "police" dogs—most of them are shepherds) can prove that he is both German and police as did the newest addition to the Allegheny county jail staff.

Early one morning, the dog appeared at the jail doors. He helped officers rout more than a score of "pau-handlers" who daily take up a station outside the jail entrance. He guarded the portal, permitting only policemen to enter.

That over, he wandered into the prison building.

From a cell, a prisoner addressed him in German. The dog halted, pricked up his ears, moved over to the cell and refused to stir while the prisoner conversed with him.

Then he refused to leave the prison at all. He attached himself to the German-speaking prisoner and "tagged" him about the jail.

"Himmel," says Warden McNeil, "Unless someone calls and claims him let the dog stay."

Charity Party Conducted By Hebrew Aid Society

A huge crowd of card players attended the card party last evening in the Proty Building, conducted by the Hebrew Ladies' Aid Society, for the benefit of charity.

The games of "500," pinochle, bridge and "500" rummy, were played. The prize list of articles offered for the successful contestants' selection was exceptionally lengthy, and the quality and variety of favors offered were decidedly worth while.

Thirty tables of pinochle players occupied one section of the room. The winners in this game and their scores were:

H. Hughes, 842; A. Flach, 800; Mrs.

Those successful in the game of bridge with their scores were:

Mrs. Seigel, 2799; Mrs. Lefkowitz, 2267, while the "500" rummy winners and their scores included: Mrs. Hoffman, 739, and Mrs. Steinberg, 771.

Many non-players also attended the party, swelling the crowd to more than two hundred fifty persons.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society are most grateful for the hearty cooperation tendered them by the public in this worthy enterprise.

Coroner's Jury Probes Cause of Three Deaths

leaving the Keystone factory when the accident happened. He said that

Harry was walking with others and attempted to step from the curb to take a short cut home. As he stepped from the curb he walked into the side of the car. The handle of the car door struck Hancy's head with such force that he died of a fractured skull.

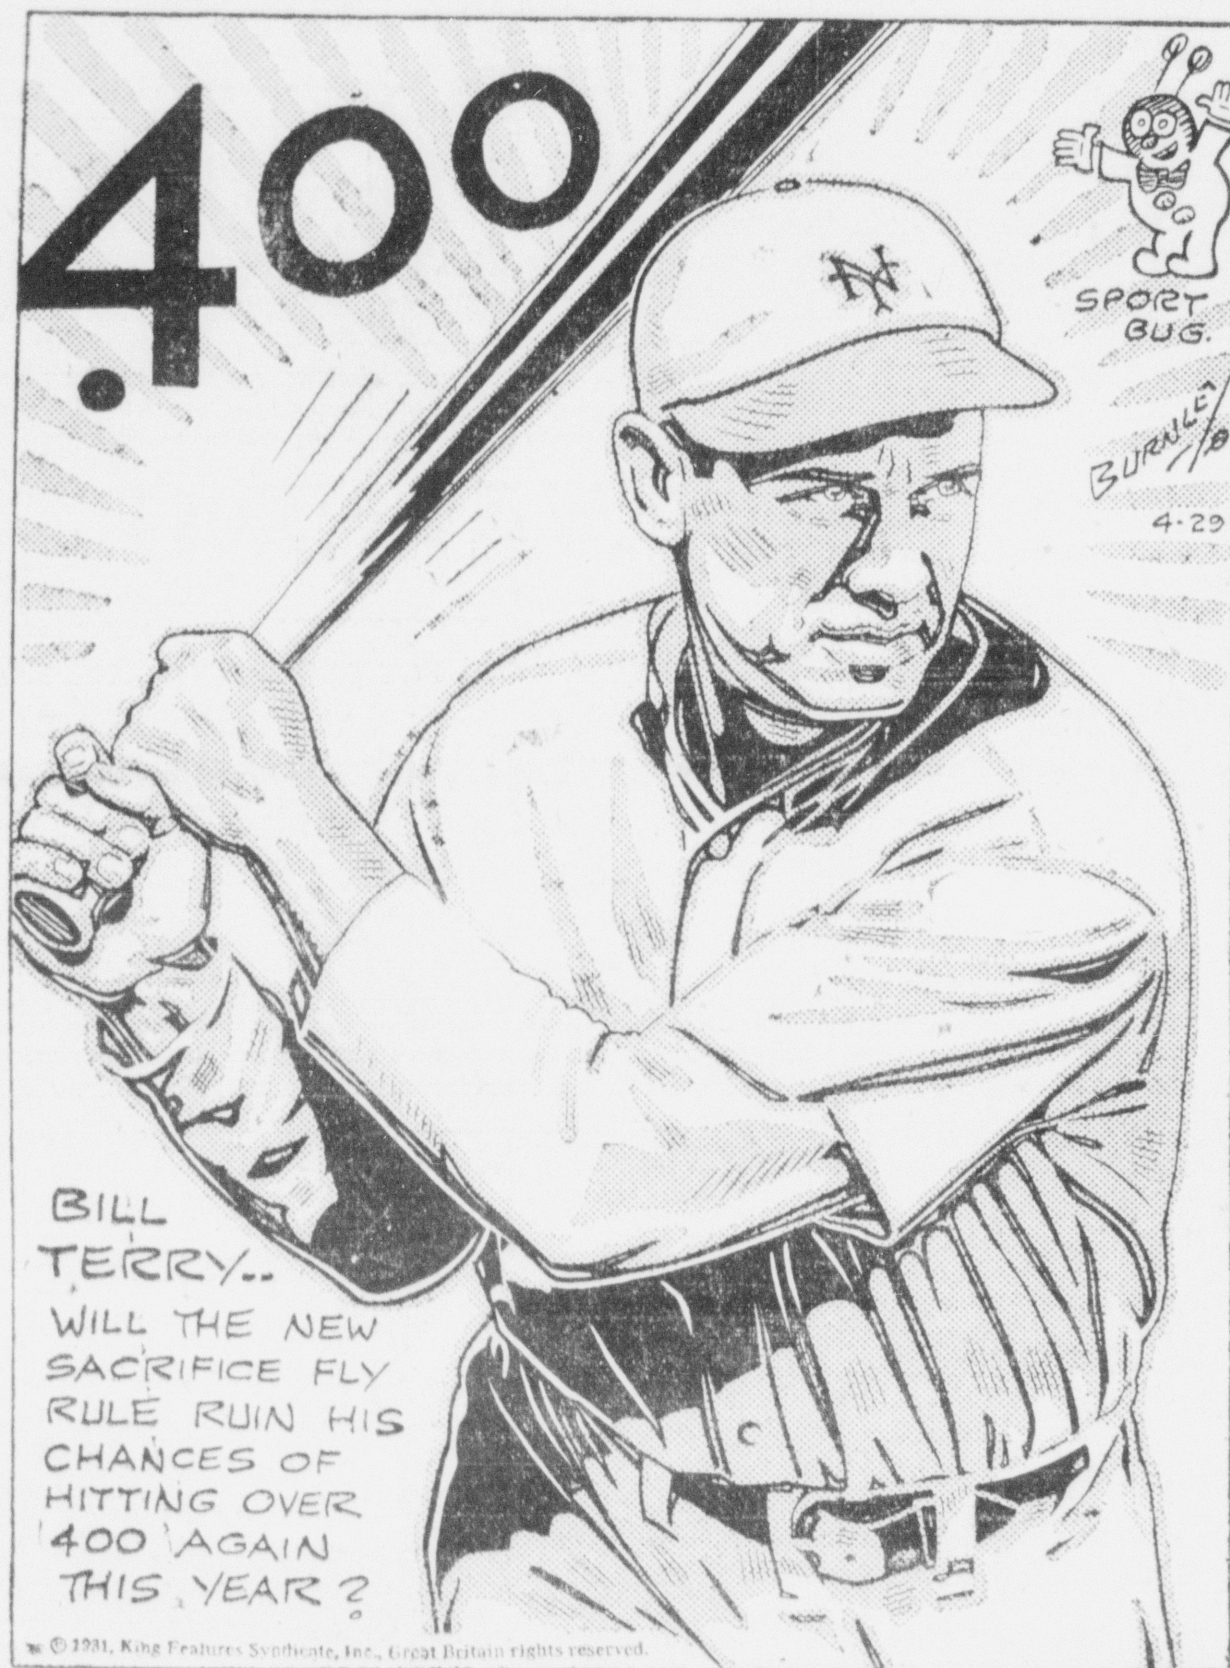

The jury exonerated Mr. Pilia after he described the manner in which the accident took place.

The jury in all three cases was Charles Rathke, H. F. Vankirk, Joseph Spencer, Thomas Lawrence, George Silbert, Bristol; R. G. Ewing, Cornwells Heights.

In the Nine case Howard I. James represented the Curtis Company, William Stuckert, Newtown, represented Mrs. Nine.

Taxing the Long Hitters

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THE ambition of practically all baseball sluggers, and the delight of most fans, is the rare .400 hitter who plays in more than a hundred games during a season. Since 1900, only seven—Lajoie, Jackson, Cobb three, Sisler twice, Hornsby three, Heilmann and Terry—have attained that swatting accolade.

Now that class seems doomed for, during the past winter, the rulemakers decided that hereafter a sacrifice fly will be counted as a time at bat. That should cut the batting average of a player from fifteen to twenty-five points in 1931. The boys who hit so-called long balls—those high arching swats that advance runners even after such flies have been caught—will be especially hard hit.

"Bill" Terry, N. Y. Giant first baseman, hit .401 during 154 games in 1930—the first time that record was reached in five years. After a brief but stirring holdout period, he rejoined the McGrawmen this Spring in excellent form. But his hopes of breaking .400 had vanished as soon as he learned of that new sacrifice fly rule.

Terry agrees with "Babe" Ruth who, naturally, thinks the long hitters should get a break. The Sultan of Swat and all the satraps of sock believe that a batter—who can drive a ball so far that it cannot be returned to the infield in time to prevent a base runner from advancing—should receive substantial recognition. The old not-a-time-at-bat scoring of a sacrifice fly seemed just to them, and many neutral critics besides.

The Babe and Giant Bill are far from enraged over the new rule but they do insist that sacrifice flies which score runs should not count as times-at-bat.

As Ruth puts it, "those long hists are really homers that fall a bit short because they go too high. It takes batting to boost out those long lifts, I know."

Why Commute?

Why travel back and forth to your employment, which is here in Bristol, when such desirable dwellings are to be obtained here at such reasonable rents? It will pay any individual to investigate!

Work Where You Live and Live Where You Work.

If you are employed in Bristol you should live here. It will be less expensive and there are numerous other advantages derived from making your home in the town where you are employed.

You will save many hours a year which are now spent in traveling and you will have more time with your family.

The saving in money will also be considerable. Add to that which you are now paying for rent the amount which you spend in traveling back and forth to your employment here. You'll be surprised at the total. Rent a house here at a moderate rental and bank the difference.

Houses.

Comfortable dwellings, well situated and at moderate rents are to be found in that portion of Bristol which is immediately adjacent to the P. R. R. passenger station.

These houses make ideal homes and consist of six rooms with bath.

Conveniences.

They are heated by hot-air furnaces with a direct pipe leading to every room. They are lighted with electricity and are equipped with sewer, municipal water and gas.

Each room is well lighted and yet the space devoted to windows is not excessive.

Front porches are another attractive feature as is also a small rear yard where children can play in safety away from the perils of traffic.

Houses such as these would rent for considerably more in any city, where the conveniences would not surpass those offered here.
